HOT SHOT FOR BOLTE.

Banker Volpe Denounced the Civil Justice in His own Court.

Repeatedly Adjourned His Cases Without Apparent Good Reason.

Yesterday He Had to Attend Boss Divver's Son's Wedding.

The attaches of Civil Justice Herman Bolte's Second District Court, at Centre Market, witnessed something of a scene there yesterday, in which the Justice himself and an irate complainant were the principal characters. The latter thought himself aggrieved. He complained that it was impossible to obtain justice there, and concluded a bitter tirade by denouncing the Court and everybody connected with it as a gang of Tammany heelers, working in the interest of Tammany and utterly regardless of the rights of citizens. Justice Bolte, by the way, is the particular protege of Police Justice Patrick Divver, and the latter's son is clerk of the court. They are members of the Divver Club, as is also Lawyer James Walsh, nephew of the ex-Warden of the Tombs. Both Justice Bolte and the lawyer are said to have been two of the men who went before the Grand fury and denied that Divver, P. J., or any one else, had offered prizes or postions for the district captain showing the most votes for the Democratic ticket in the last election. All of the ticket in the last election. All of the tickets in the last election. All of the parties named figure to some extent in this story, which serves in a way to demonstrate how justice is administered in that district court.

The complainant in the case, who had the "run in," as those who heard it call it, with justice Bolte, was Vincent Volpe, member of the firm of L. Volpe & Co., bankers and steamship brokers, of 13 Mulberry street. Although an Italian by birth he has been an American citizen for over twenty years. He is one of the wealthiest men in the Italian colony, and until this year was a frequent and liberal contributor to Tammany clubs. Now, however, it is different. He has refused to contribute anything to the Wigwamites. He is a member of nearly every Italian society in the city, and is working with the reformers. This is the story of the scene in court yesterday just as he told it to an "Evening World" reporter:

"When the city acquired all the houses around Mulberry Bend for the purpose of laying out a park there," he said, "the officials advertised for bidders for the houses. The terms were that no yearly leases would be given, but that the anoth. The idea, as I understand it, was that the houses might be torn down at any time to make way for the park.

"For some of the houses I was the highest bidder, and at a rental of $1.800 the park.

"For some of the houses I was the highest bidder, and at a rental of $1,800 I got them. My bidding was simply a speculation. I hoped to rent the houses and make money on them. Thanks to Justice Bolte I am out on this month alone over $200, and altogether am out $600, but if I can find any law to make him pay for it, I will certainly avail myself of it.

soo, but if I can find any law to make him pay for it, I will certainly avail myself of it.

"Among the houses which I rented from the city was the one at 55 Mulberry street. The tenants had all agreed to pay their rents, but when rent day came, on the first of this month, they owned the property.

"In order to establish my position, as well as to recover the rent, I brought suit against the tenants in Justice Bolte's court. The cases were set down before him for Sept. T.

"When that day came around and I appeared in court I found that the tenants had engaged Lawyer James Waish, a member of the Divver Club, as their counsel. However, that did not worry me, but when Justice Bolte said he could not try the cases that day, as he was preparing for the Divver parade, I was astonished. He set the cases the cases that day as he had no time then to listen. I told fin that every day's delay meant money is me, as I could easily get other tensets for the house. He insisted, however, that he had no time. He said I would have to be satisfied to have the Sies tried on the 18th.

"Tuesday came," and Mr. Volpe's interest against of the source. The case of the source of the said I would have to be satisfied to have the Sies tried on the 18th.

dignation began to rise as he thought of it. "What did Justice Boile do? Why, he said he would not hear the cases that day for $100. It was in vain that I protested. I pointed out that this month's rent was lost to me, any-how, but he said he could not possibly hear me until the 20th of the month, and he would then surely take them

"Well, I went there yesterday with

"Well, I went there yesterday with my lawyer." he continued. "and what do you think happened? Why, the moment he saw me Justice Bolte said:
"What! do you think I am going to hear your cases te-day? Do you know what day it is? Why, Justice Divver's son is to be married to-day, and I can't listen to you." "That simply took my breath away. I did not know what to say at first. Then I asked him if he would make an order requiring the tenants te deposit the month's rent with him, nending a settlement of the ownership question. I pointed out that this menth was practically over, and that us an act of simple justice he ought to do that.
"He said he had nothing to do with that, and the cases would all have to go over until Sept. 21. That of course meant that even if the cases would be heard then I would lose my rent, because the tenants could easily move out.
"It was more than I could stand, and I heard then I would lose my rent, because the tenants could easily move out.

"It was more than I could stand, and I let fly at him. I said that although I had lost through him over $200 on the month I would spend ten times that amount to get it back from him, and I will. I will sue him for every dollar of it and all that it has cost me.

"I denounced the gang as a lot of Tammany heelers, from whom it seemed impossible to obtain justice. I asked him what business it was of mine whether Jimmie Divver got married or not, and whether he was paid for attending Divver marriages, and Divver golonics, or for attending to the business of he court. Well, he talked back at me, and after a time I backed out. "Now, you can say this for me, that none of that gang has power to fix ame, and I will push this case against Justice Bolte to the end.

"I think I know the real reason for acting against me. Last year the Italians only took eleven tickets. I am Treasurer of the Italian Republican League, and had much to do with the falling off in the sale of tickets. I also know that some of the best Italians, who were members of the Divver Club, salve left that organization. Besides, Jimmie Walsh is a member of the Divver Club, and he was counsel for the tenants."

Miss Shirley, not alone from the fact that she will have to pay the money, but because of the disappointment she has suffered in being beaten.

When the proceedings before Civil Justice Stiner were ended, not a person in the room doubted that Miss Shirley had the Court with her. Not only had several very pretty actress friends of the defendant testified that the boots were devoid of fit, and that they positively spoiled the reunded symmetry of Miss Shirley's pedal extremities, but the sprightly actress allowed the learned Judge to satisfy himself of this fact by ocular demonstration.

When Miss Shirley learned to-day that she had lost her case it made her positively ill.

Miss Kabat Sues for $10,000. Miss Ida Kabat has brought suit for $10,000 damages against John Katzman, through her counsel, Louis Steckler, of 275 Broadway. Miss Kabat claims that she was engaged to Mr. Karr-man in 1897, that in February and March of this year he circulated stories reflecting upon her character, and broke the engagement. She decharacter, and troke the engagement. She de-elares that she does not desire to marry him now, but is dotermined to punish him for his alleged slanderous language. Mr. Steckler has secured an order of arrest, issued by Judge Pitrimmons, of the City Court, holding Kataman in ball pending the suit.

When that address was reached both girls were fast asleep and could not be aroused. The people of the house were called out to claim them, but no one recognized them, and the driver acordingly put back to the Coleman House.

The girls were still asleep, and the clerk said that they were not guests of the house. the house.

They were then driven to the West Thirtieth street police station. They They were then driven to the West Thirtieth street police station. They were still in their trance, and were carried to cells in the arms of policemen. They awoke in the middle of the night, and, discovering their plight, set up a wall of anguish that moved the case-hardened policeman very deeply, but nothing could be done for them. Policeman Ryan brought the girls around to the court. On the way they said they must have been drugged or have been in singularly susceptible condition, as they only drank a quart of champagne apiece, and had often gotten away with that quantity without any evil results.

Justice Hogan looked at them pityingly and called them up within the railing.
